Created from the developer's own need, Safe Room is a small application with calming sounds with small animations, to help you concentrate or relax. The application is composed of six environments plus a customizable environment with the sounds already available.

The animations and backgrounds were made especially for this project, however the sound remains in the background to allow continuity of tasks.

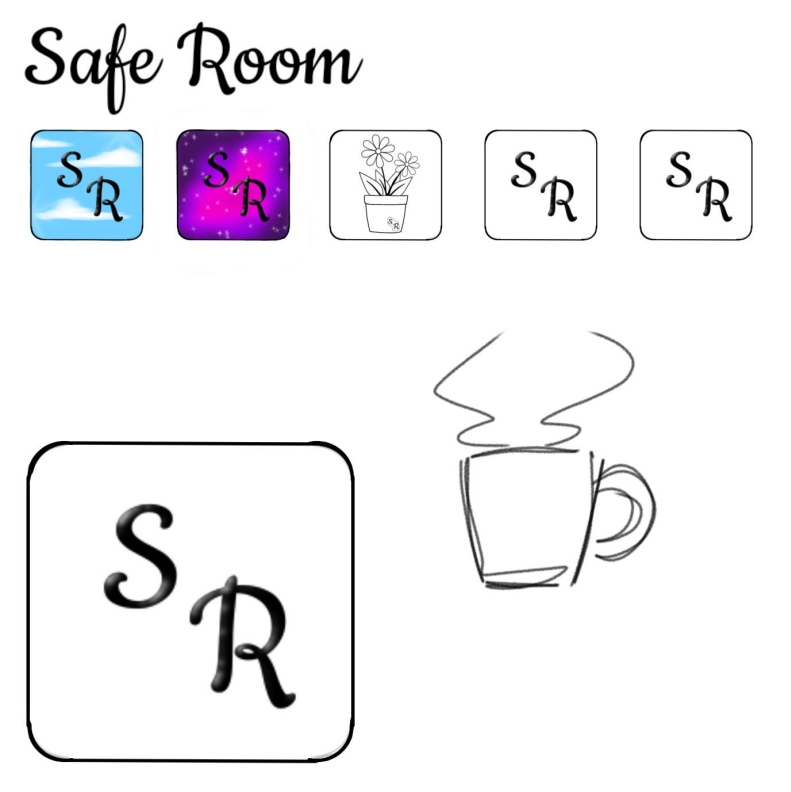

About the name

“Safe rooms are fixed points straddling the gaming timeline—a simultaneous reminder of all you’ve done and all you’ve yet to do.

- MARTIN, Sean. "The art of crafting the perfect videogame safe room". PC GAMER, 2020.”

The idea of a "safe room" is something that gives players a moment of respite in horror games. It is a place that no enemy can enter and attack you. So the idea of a place that is safe for everyone fit in well with the calming app.

About the author

I’m Gii Rog, from Mechanical Lullaby Arts.

Sometimes when I have anxiety or stress, one of the best ways to get through it is with sounds. Together with friends and professional colleagues, I gathered the sounds that I found most calming.

But I didn't just want the sound. I wanted the user to feel cozy. So I came up with the idea of the environment. I like small things, I think they're adorable, so this little piece of software is that big.

The idea is simply to make the user's day to day better. Audio can be left in the background. No ads, no interruptions, the sound only stops when the user wants it.
