

Some people think that they are currently living the best time in human history, others think that the best days are in the past. Why? Explain.

Some people think that they are currently living the best time in human history, but why is that?

Maybe because of all the developments and easiness we have nowadays, all the technologies and benefits of this new and modern age that we are living in. Maybe because history shows us that we had difficulties in the past that we don't need to have anymore because we can solve this in an easy way.

If we compare our lives with the lives of people that lived in the same place that we are now, but two hundred years ago, for example, we would easily understand by the facts that we have easier lives today, if we get sick for example, we can just go to the doctor and solve it with medical exams and medicine, a situation that wouldn't be so easy hundreds of years ago without technology.

Another example is that we can communicate with everyone in the planet without moving place, we need only to get online. We are also able to know what is happening in any part of the planet right the moment that it happens, because the news is updating every moment so we have the pleasing facility to keep up to date with what is going on around the world.

But others think that the best days are in the past, maybe that's true, in early days we wouldn't have many diseases as we have today, and we didn't have to get stressed in traffic to get to work because there hasn't any traffic back in those days.

Maybe people think that before the times were easier and simpler, where they wouldn't have to worry about the problems and issues that we have and deal nowadays. But how can we decide which time is the best and most appropriate? No one knows for sure, the only think that we have to worry is to live the best life because today is all we have.
